

Communication

Processors are only part of the landscape of embedded systems; these must communicate with the outer world and need to be interconnected with other devices in the system. Ac6 provides trainings on all the most advanced communication and interconnection technologies.

You can see detailed course category descriptions by using the carousel on top. You can also click on category definitions in the briefs hereafter.

Trainings - Storage Interfaces